

Fire

Pioli

www.saveourchiefs.com

Facts About Scott Pioli's Time In Kansas City

The Chiefs record under the guidance of Scott Pioli is 22-33 which includes the 30-7 playoff loss to the Ravens in 2010.

The Chiefs record under Scott Pioli against winning teams (9-7 or better) is 3-15 including the 2010 playoff loss.

The Chiefs record under Scott Pioli against PLAYOFF teams is 3-15. Two of those wins came against the Packers and the Broncos, both with Kyle Orton under center. Only one came with Cassel and was against the 7-9 Seattle Seahawks.

The Chiefs have been blown out by 14 or more points under Scott Pioli 18 times in 55 games (32.7%). This team gets blown out more often than the Jacksonville Jaguars who have been blown out 15 times within the same span of time.

At home, the Chiefs are 3-10 and have been blown out by 17 points or more in 7 of those 10 losses.

Pioli married himself to Cassel, ESPN's 28th ranked QB, and promised there would be competition at QB coming into this season. Instead of any real competition, Pioli lets Orton walk and brings in Quinn, and Cassel remained the unquestioned starter until his injury.

Blackout Arrowhead on November 18th when the Chiefs play the Bengals Organizers behind the Save Our Chiefs movement have designated November 18, 2012 against the Cincinnati Bengals as the official Blackout Arrowhead game. Not a blackout in the traditional sense where the game isn't televised but instead one where the fans wear black to the game. Why a Blackout? To send a visual message that Chief fans are tired of broken leadership and subpar performance on the field. Black is a color commonly attributed to "mourning" which is the current state of mind and spirit of the Chiefs fan base.

We who have been loyal for so long deserve better than what we have received. We have endured 19 painful years with no playoff wins. While it's acknowledged that the organization has won the AFC West, as recently as 2010, they mean nothing when they are immediately followed by playoff losses. We have had a single appearance in the AFC championship game since 1970 (1993) and we lost. In 1984, the AFC Championship trophy was named "The Lamar Hunt Trophy". How sad is it that we have never once held the trophy that bears our founders name?

We ask everyone who attends the Chiefs/Bengals game on November 18 to wear black and cheer for the Chiefs. Send a message that Sea of Red will quickly change and disappear if change isn't made. Arrowhead will once again be empty like it was in the 80s. To learn more about the Save Our Chiefs movement please follow us at www.saveourchiefs.com, at www.facebook.com/SaveOurChiefs, on Twitter @SaveOurChiefs, or the original thread on www.chiefsplanet.com.